A FREEDOM of trade undefined, or only reſtrained within juſt bounds, would put a ſtop to theſe illicit practices, which excite ſuch an outcry; then would the colonies attain that meaſure of affluence which would enable them not only to ſhake off the weight of four millions ſterling, which they owe the mother country, but to take from her annually upwards of two millions worth of merchandizes, which their preſent conſumption demands. But in place of this pleaſing perſpective, which ſhould naturally ariſe out of the Engliſh conſtitution, by what fatality is it that a claim, unwarrantable in a free ſtate, hath carried under the harſh form of taxation into the centre of the colonies a root of trouble and diſſention, perhaps a conflagration, by no means ſo eaſily extinguiſhed as lighted up?

England had juſt concluded a war, which might be called a univerſal one; in the courſe of which her fleets had hoiſted the flag of victory in every ſea, while her conqueſts had enlarged her dominions by an immenſe acquiſition of territory in both the Indies. This ſudden and unexpected growth gave her a brilliancy in the eyes of other nations, which made envy and admiration ſpeak, or aſtoniſhed them into ſilence; yet within herſelf ſhe was compelled to mourn inceſſantly over her ſplendid triumphs. Cruſhed by the preſſure of a debt of one hundred and forty eight millions, the intereſt of which amounted to four millions nine hundred and ſixty three thouſand four hundred and forty four pounds, with a revenue of ten millions, ſhe could ſcarcely provide for the current expences of the ſtate; and this revenue, without a chance of encreaſe, was in danger of ſinking.

The land tax was rated higher than it had ever been in time of peace; new duties on houſes and windows injured that kind of property; an augmentation of revenue on the regiſtry of deeds bore heavy on real eſtates. The veins of luxury had been exhauſted by additional taxes on wrought plate, cards, dice, wine, and ardent ſpirits. Nothing more could be expected from commerce, already loaded with duties in every port, to every port, on the merchandizes of the eaſt, on the products of the weſt, on groceries, on mercery wares, in a word, on all ſubjects of exportation or importation, whether raw materials or manufactures. The curb of the exciſe had happily checked the abuſe of ſpirituous liquors, but at the expence of the public revenue. A compenſation had been looked for from one of thoſe reſources which are readily found, but not ſafely ſought, in the articles of general conſumption and greateſt neceſſity; the exciſe had laid hold of the ordinary drink of the people, of malt, cyder, and porter; every ſpring had been forced; all the muſcles of the political body, ſtrained at once to too violent a tenſion, had ſtarted from their places; the price both of materials and of workmanſhip had riſen ſo prodigiouſly that rival, and even vanquiſhed nations, who till then could not withſtand the competition of the Engliſh, were come the length of ſupplanting them in all markets, even in their own ports; the whole of the profits which Great Britain derived from her commerce with every part of the globe could not be eſtimated at more than two millions and a half, and out of this balance was to be deducted the ſum of one million five hundred and ſixty thouſand pounds, payable to foreigners yearly, on fifty two millions, which they had in the public funds.

The criſis was difficult and dangerous; the people muſt get leave to breathe. They could not be relieved by a leſſening of the public expences; theſe were inevitable, whether occaſioned by the view of turning to account acquiſitions purchaſed by ſo much blood, ſo much treaſure, or of curbing the reſentments of the houſe of Bourbon, irritated to the laſt degree by the diſgrace of the late war, by the ſacrifices of the late peace. In the want of every other means of inſuring preſent ſecurity, and future proſperity, the idea ſuggeſted itſelf of calling in the colonies to the ſuccour of the capital, by obliging them to bear a part of its burthens; a determination apparently founded on inconteſtable reaſons.

An eſtabliſhed maxim of all civil ſocieties, and of all ages, binds on the different members which compoſe an empire an obligation to contribute to the expences of it in proportion to their reſpective abilities. The ſecurity of the American provinces calls for ſuch aids from them as may enable the mother country to protect them on all occaſions. It was to deliver them from tormenting diſquietudes that ſhe engaged in a war which hath multiplied her debts; they ſhould therefore aſſiſt her in bearing or in leſſening this additional load. Safe from the enterprizes of a formidable neighbour, now, happily for them, removed to a diſtance, can they without injuſtice refuſe to the preſſing exigencies of their deliverer that treaſure which the care of their preſervation hath coſt him? The encouragement which this generous protector gave for a length of time to the rich productions of their ſoil, the gratuitous advances which he ſtill laviſhes to thoſe regions which are not yet cleared, ſuch and ſo many good and kind offices, are they not entitled to a return of cordial ſympathy and eſſential ſervices?

Such were the conſiderations which convinced the Britiſh government that they had a right to lay internal taxes on the colonies. They ſeized the opportunity afforded by the laſt war to exhibit a claim ſo dangerous to liberty; for whoever attends to it muſt ſee that war, whether proſperous or the reverſe, furniſhes evermore the pretext for the various uſurpations of governments, as if the rulers of belligerant nations had it infinitely more at heart to enſlave their ſubjects than to vanquiſh their enemies. The American provinces were accordingly ordered to provide the troops ſent from the capital for their defence with a part of their neceſſaries. The dread of interrupting that internal harmony which is ſo eſſential in the midſt of ſurrounding enemies induced them to ſecond the intentions of parliament, but with the deep policy of taking no notice of an act which they could neither reject without exciting civil diſſention, nor acknowledge without endangering rights too precious not to be tenderly cheriſhed. NEW YORK alone ventured to refuſe all compliance. Though the tranſgreſſion was venial, ſhe was puniſhed as for obſtinate diſobedience by a ſuſpenſion of her privileges. This blow given to the liberty of one colony ought, one would think, to have excited the clamours of all the others. Whether through want of attention or foreſight, not one raiſed its voice. Their ſilence was conſidered as the reſult of fear or of voluntary ſubmiſſion. The peace, which ſhould have lowered the impoſts throughout, produced in 1764 the famous ſtamp act, which laying certain duties on ſtamped paper, prohibited at the ſame time the uſe of any other, in any kind of deed or public writing, whether judiciary or extrajudiciary.

The whole of the Engliſh colonies in the new world roſe up againſt this novelty, and their diſcontent broke out in a very remarkable manner: A kind of conſpiracy, perhaps the only kind which is ſuited to a civilized and of courſe moderate people, was entered into, a formal agreement amongſt all the coloniſts to deprive themſelves of all ſorts of wares manufactured in Great Britain till the offenſive act ſhould be repealed. This indirect and paſſive mode of reſiſtance, which ſhould ſerve as a model to all nations who feel themſelves trampled on by the abuſe of power, had its effect; the Engliſh manufacturers, who had ſcarce any other outlet for their goods throughout the univerſe than the national colonies, fell into that deſpair into which the want of employment muſt naturally plunge them; and their cries, which government could neither ſtifle nor elude, made an impreſſion ſalutary for the colonies; the ſtamp act was repealed after two years of a convulſive agitation, which, in the days of fanaticiſm, would have been a civil war.

But the triumph of the colonies was of ſhort duration. Parliament had not retreated without extreme repugnance. It was evident that they had not renounced their claims, when, in 1767, by way of equivalent for what the ſtamp act was expected to have produced, they laid a tax on glaſs, lead, tea, painters colours, paſteboard, and paper, exported from England to America. Even thoſe patriots, who ſeemed to carry the ſupremacy of the capital over the colonies to the greateſt length, could not help condemning a tax, the operation of which muſt ultimately recoil upon the whole nation, by turning to manufactures thoſe hands which it was her intereſt to have kept confined to agriculture. The coloniſts were as little duped by this innovation as by the former one. In vain was it alledged that government had an indubitable right to lay on exportations what duties they thought proper while they did not deprive the colonies of the liberty of manufacturing for themſelves ſuch goods as were ſubject to this new tax. This ſubterfuge looked like a mockery, in regard to a people, who, habituated to tillage alone, and reſtrained from all commerce but with the mother country, could neither procure by their own labour nor a foreign trade thoſe neceſſaries which were ſold to them at ſo high a price. They ſaw clearly that whether a duty was paid in the old or in the new world, words could not alter the nature of the thing, and that their liberty was equally attacked by an impoſt on wares, which they could not do without, as by a tax on ſtamped paper, which they were compelled to make uſe of. This enlightened people plainly perceived that government wanted to deceive them, and they did not think it their duty to be impoſed on, either by force or cunning. They rightly judged that the moſt deciſive mark of imbecility and of meanneſs in a nation muſt be the connivance of ſubjects at the frauds and violences employed by government to corrupt and enſlave them.

The averſion which they expreſſed for theſe new impoſitions did not ariſe from their exceſſive weight, ſeeing they could not be eſtimated at more than ſixteen pence a head; this was not an object to ſtartle an immenſe population, whoſe public expenditure hath never exceeded one hundred and ſixty thouſand pounds annually.

It was not the dread of finding themſelves in leſs eaſy circumſtances; the ſecurity they derived from the ceſſions extorted from France, the encreaſe of their trade with the Indians, the extenſion of their whale, cod, and ſeal fiſheries, the right to cut wood in the bay of Campeachy, the acquiſition of ſundry ſugar iſlands, the greater facility of carrying on an illicit intercourſe with the Spaniſh ſettlements, to which they were become nearer neighbours, ſo many inlets of wealth were an ample compenſation for that trifle of revenue which government wiſhed to draw from them.

It was not an apprehenſion that the colonies would be drained of what little ſpecie remained in circulation among them; the pay of eight thouſand four hundred regulars, which the capital maintains in North America, muſt bring in more caſh than this tax could poſſibly carry out.

It was not an indifference for the parent ſtate; the colonies, ſo far from being ungrateful, had evidenced ſuch zeal for her intereſts during the laſt war that parliament, from a principle of equity, remitted them very conſiderable ſums, by way of reſtitution or indemnification.

Nor was it, in fine, an ignorance of the duty which ſubjects owe, or of the obligations which they ſtand under to government; had the colonies not thought themſelves bound to contribute to the liquidation of the national debt, though perhaps they had occaſioned the greateſt part of it, they knew very well that they were bound to contribute to the expences of the navy, to the maintenance of the different eſtabliſhments in Africa and America, in a word, to all thoſe common charges which had relation to their ſafety and proſperity, as well as to thoſe of the mother country.

If the new world refuſed to ſuccour the old, it was becauſe that was exacted which it would have been ſufficient to have aſked; becauſe that muſt be held on the footing of her obedience which ſhould have only been ſolicited from her liberty. Her non-compliance was not caprice, but juſt jealouſy of her rights; rights which ſhould not, cannot be conteſted.

During the courſe of two centuries that the Engliſh have had ſettlements in North America, their country hath ſuſtained many expenſive and bloody wars, hath been diſturbed by enterprizing and tumultuous parliaments, hath been governed by daring and corrupt miniſters, ever ready to exalt the dignity and prerogative of the throne on the ruin of the rights and privileges of the people; yet ambition, avarice, factions, tyranny, all of them in their turns, have recognized, all have reſpected the liberty which the colonies enjoyed of laying on themſelves every tax for the purpoſe of creating a revenue. A ſolemn contract ſupported this prerogative, ſo natural in itſelf, and ſo conformable to the fundamental end of all reaſonable aſſociation.

LONDON, July 11.

THERE is a talk of the common council moving on Wednesday next for a preſent of 1000l. to be granted to the lord mayor, on account of his ſpirit and reſolution in behalf of public liberty in general, and the rights and privileges of the citizens in particular.

Extract of a letter from Portſmouth, dated July 9.

"Wedneſday an expreſs arrived with diſpatches for Boſton, to be conveyed by the Alderney ſloop. The ſhip was then fitting in the harbour, and had neither guns, or ſcarcely any thing elſe, on board; but the people working on her all night, ſhe was got ready the next day, when ſhe ſailed, without anchoring at Spithead."

Several veſſels were taken up laſt week in the river, on government contract, to embark troops, ſtores, proviſions, and ammunition, for America.

The Raven man of war is ſailed for Boſton.

Government, we are aſſured, has received ſome very diſagreeable intelligence from America, which is endeavoured to be ſtifled from the public. Certain, however, it is, that many of the ſubaltern officers, under the command of general Gage, have thrown up their commiſſions.

Though Ireland is entirely in a defenceleſs ſtate, no one ſtep has been taken, either to repair the fortifications on the ſea coaſt, to compleat the regiments now within that kingdom, or replace thoſe ſent to Boſton.

July 12. On Monday arrived at Dover the Polly, Thompſon, and the Mary, Turrel, both from New York. They have brought over ſeveral of the moſt capital families, who have left New York on account of the troubles that ſubſiſt there, which are not likely to end till that once flouriſhing city is laid in aſhes, which was daily expected when the above ſhips ſailed from thence.

The news brought by the Meredith packet, which has ſo much alarmed adminiſtration, is ſaid to be, that a large body of Spaniards are actually on their march, and within a ſhort diſtance of Gibraltar, and that the Spaniſh fleet is not more than 60 leagues off that place, where they were in daily expectation of being beſieged, both by ſea and land.

The people of Ireland, it is ſaid, are exceedingly uneaſy, and very apprehenſive, that the Spaniards mean to pay them a viſit, as they are at preſent totally incapable of reſiſting them; for when the next American embarkation takes place, it is computed there will not be then 4000 effective men in the kingdom, many of the regiments of foot ſcarcely amounting to 180 men.

Extract of a letter from Chatham, dated July 9.

"The 20 taſk companies, conſiſting of 400 ſhipwrights, ſtill continue to abſent themſelves from his majeſty's dockyard here, and are determined not to return to their duty till their wages are raiſed to half a crown per day. The above companies are picked, and eſteemed as good workmen as any in the royal navy. They intend to petition his majeſty for redreſs, being unable to ſupport themſelves and families upon ſo ſmall a ſum as two ſhillings and one penny a day. In order to accompliſh the ſame, they have appointed Mr. Joſeph Mearſe and Mr. Daniel Rowley, ſhipwrights belonging to the ſaid companies, who are qualified men, and extraordinary good workmen, to deliver their petition to his majeſty; for which purpoſe they ſet out from hence for London yeſterday, at which place they are to meet two of their brother ſhipwrights from Woolwich, with the like number from Portſmouth, and two from Plymouth yards, deputed for the ſame buſineſs. A contribution is to be made tomorrow by the gentlemen of this town, for the ſupport of the ſhipwrights belonging to this dockyard, who have large families, and are in want of the neceſſaries of life. Yeſterday about 70 ſhipwrights belonging to the day companies, who were appointed to work on board the ſhips fitting out for ſea at this port, abſented themſelves, and joined the taſk companies, being determined, it ſeems, not to go to work again till their wages are raiſed to half a crown per day. Orders were received here for the Liverpool frigate, of 28 guns, to be fitted for ſea with the greateſt expedition. Our dockyard appears a ſcene of diſtreſs, there being now only a few old ſhipwrights, worn out in the ſervice, to do the buſineſs here, with a few apprentices; notwithſtanding, 3 ſhips are ordered to be got ready for ſea immediately, viz. the Roebuck of 44 guns, the Milford of 28, and the Liverpool before mentioned."

Extract of a letter from the Hague, dated June 29. 1775.

"In a full aſſembly of the ſtates general, the 20th ult. it was reſolved, that orders be iſſued from the admiralty board of their high mightineſſes the ſtates general to the ſieur Van Stort, vice admiral of the Dutch ſquadron in the Weſt Indies, inſtructing him to give orders to all perſons under him, to their utmoſt power, to ſeize and deſtroy all ammunition, ſtores, and proviſions, which may be found in any ſhip or ſhips, bound from any of the Dutch ſettlements in that quarter, or on board Dutch ſhips from any quarter, which are bound to any port in the Engliſh American colonies, except ſuch as is conſigned either to the governors of New England, Philadelphia, New York, Halifax, or Virginia, and that ſuch captures ſhall be conſidered as lawful prizes, and be ſhared among the officers and crews of thoſe veſſels concerned in them, the ſame as thoſe who are enemies of the ſtates; but that the crews (the captain, his chief mate, and ſupercargo, if any, excepted) be landed on the neareſt dominion of Great Britain where ſuch capture is made. It is reſolved alſo, that the ſieur Van Stort make this known in every Dutch port or harbour where he may touch. Likewiſe, it is ordered, that theſe reſolutions be made known to his excellency Mr. Yorke, the Britiſh miniſter to the ſtates, and a copy of the ſame be ſent to the Dutch reſident at London."

Extract of a letter from Portſmouth, dated July 8.

"On Wedneſday, agreeable to orders from the navy board, 92 people were diſcharged from the dockyard. None of the others are yet gone to work; but are making freſh petitions, addreſſed to the inhabitants, &c. of this and the adjacent towns."

By letters from Ireland we are informed that the people in the northern counties let their flax grow longer this year than uſual, in hopes that it might ſtrengthen the ſeed, which they pay great attention to, as they have no proſpect of getting any from America this year.

By a letter received from an Engliſh gentleman of diſtinction at Paris, we are aſſured that a camp is actually marking out in the plain of Lance for 60,000 French troops.

July 13. Yeſterday the two ſheriffs, and city remembrancer, waited on his majeſty at St. James's, to know when he would be graciouſly pleaſed to receive the city petition and addreſs, when he was pleaſed to appoint tomorrow at 2 o'clock.

It is now more than probable that a change of men and meaſures will take place in the courſe of a few days.

A nobleman of diſtinction, who has been long odious to the public, has ordered all the bills of his tradeſmen to be diſcharged, and is preparing with his family to ſet off for the ſouth of France.

It was yeſterday ſtrongly rumoured in the neighbourhood of Saint James's that 11 Spaniſh men of war of the line, ſeveral frigates, bombs, and fireſhips, were cruiſing in the Gut of Gibraltar.

Four men of war are ordered for Gibraltar as ſoon as poſſible, and 4 ſhips are taken into government ſervice as tenders, to lie off the Tower, to receive ſuch men as ſhall enter or be preſſed, to man the above 4 men of war.

It is aſſerted as a fact, in the city, that captain Clarke, who arrived laſt Monday from Senegal with diſpatches for government, brings an account, that the French have a very conſiderable fleet upon the coaſt of Africa, and that it is apprehenſive they have ſome deſign upon that place, and that the governor wants a reinforcement of ſhips and ſoldiers.

One 50, one 40 gun ſhip, and 5 frigates more, are commiſſioned to ſerve in America.

Two battalions of foot, of 1000 men each, are forthwith to be raiſed, in order to be ſent to America.

Accounts from Warminſter ſay that the wheat looks remarkably fine on the ground, and promiſes the largeſt crops ever remembered, which has lowered there 4s. per quarter; and wagers are laid, that before harveſt the beſt wheat will not fetch more than 5s. a buſhel.

A letter from Briſtol, dated July 4, ſays: Two thouſand barrels of flour were bought yeſterday for Newfoundland, the people on the fiſhery being in the greateſt diſtreſs, only two pounds of bread per week per man being the allowance; and it is ſuppoſed many will leave the fiſhery on account of the want of proviſions. It is generally thought the Weſt India iſlands will ſoon be in the ſame ſtate.

We hear from Waterford, that in conſequence of the preſent unhappy and melancholy diſputes between England and her American colonies, the people in Newfoundland are in extreme want of proviſions. Wedneſday the Hercules, captain Thompſon, in ballaſt, and the Byron, captain Reeves, with ſalt, arrived here from St. John's, in order to carry over, with all poſſible ſpeed, 40 tons of bread, and a quantity of other neceſſaries, to that harbour.

Yeſterday the Valentine, captain Nowlan, arrived here from St. John's, for bread, &c.

Prince Mazerino, the Spaniſh ambaſſador, was at Kew a few days ago, and it is ſaid gave ſuch a ſatisfactory account of the preſent warlike preparations of Spain, that the Americans have nothing to hope, nor England to fear, from them.

Letters from New York mention, that the congreſs had voted 36,000 men as a ſtanding army, beſides the militia, and one million of Pennſylvania currency to pay them with; that three of the delegates be a committee to act; that they are reſolved to ſend manifeſtoes to all the powers in Europe, to let them know their reaſons for breaking with their mother country; that they are determined not to ſubmit till they are reinſtated in all the privileges they enjoyed before the late acts, &c. and that all the ports be ſtopped before the 2nd of July.

A report gains ground, at the weſt end of the town, that the Spaniſh armament is actually intended againſt Gibraltar, and that advices have been received, in the courſe of the preſent week, which leave it no longer a matter of doubt.

Many of the ſhipwrights are reſolved, if their grievances are not ſpeedily redreſſed, to ſail immediately for America, where they are aſſured of being received with open arms by every true lover of liberty, and their country.

A Briſtol correſpondent informs us, that the conſequences of the American reſolutions are ſo viſibly felt, by all the commercial ranks of people in that city, juſt now, that, whilſt the merchants are diſtracted, little leſs than an inſurrection is expected from the ſeveral orders of people dependent on them.

There will be petitions from Liverpool and Briſtol upon American affairs.

It is ſaid that a certain perſonage is in a very dangerous way, the perſons deputed to wait on him having left him ſpeechleſs. A conſultation of the whole body will be held thereon, but it is apprehended as a loſt caſe, his complaint being of a very obſtinate nature.

We are informed, that ſhould the diſturbances in New England continue till the next ſitting of parliament, an act will be paſſed to make it lawful to try, by a court martial, all ſuch perſons as ſhall be taken in arms after the promulgation of a proclamation, on a day to be ſpecified in the act. Others affirm, that a court of Oyer and Terminer ſhall be eſtabliſhed for the ſpecial purpoſe of trying the rebels at Boſton; and that no perſon, ſuſpected by the king's council as diſaffected to the ſupremacy of parliament over America, ſhall be permitted to ſit upon any jury. This meaſure will be leſs liable to objections than the bringing of the culprits to be tried in this country.

It is ſaid, that the reaſon for delaying the 5000 men, which the miniſtry deſigned to ſend to America, is, that the three generals lately arrived at Boſton have ſent it home, as their opinion, that they may be able to defeat the provincials without farther aſſiſtance, though general Gage thinks 15,000 men abſolutely neceſſary for the reduction of New England. The tranſports, however, are taken up, and ſeveral regiments have received orders to hold themſelves in readineſs at the ſhorteſt notice; ſo that in caſe the projected attack on the provincials under Putnam ſhould not appear practicable to our general officers, the reinforcements ſhall be embarked in the firſt week in Auguſt.

TO THE KING's MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

The humble addreſs and petition of the lord mayor, aldermen, and commons, of the city of London, in common council aſſembled.

Moſt gracious ſovereign,

YOUR majeſty's moſt loyal and dutiful ſubjects, the lord mayor, aldermen, and commons, of the city of London, in common council aſſembled, with all humility beg leave to lay themſelves at your royal feet, humbly imploring your benign attention towards the grievous diſtraction of their fellow ſubjects in America.

The characteriſtic of the people, ſire, over whom you reign, has ever been equally remarked for an unparallelled loyalty to their ſovereign, whilſt the principles of the conſtitution have been the rule of his government; as well as a firm oppoſition, whenever their rights have been invaded.

Your American ſubjects, royal ſire, deſcended from the ſame anceſtors with ourſelves, appear equally jealous of their prerogatives of freemen, without which they cannot deem themſelves happy.

Their chearful and unaſked-for contributions, as well as willing ſervices to the mother country, whilſt they remained free from the clog of compulſory laws, will, we are ſure, plead powerfully with the humanity of your diſpoſition, for graciouſly granting them every reaſonable opportunity of giving, as freemen, what they ſeem reſolutely determined to refuſe, under the injunction of laws made independent of their own conſent.

The abhorrence we entertain of civil bloodſhed and confuſion will, we truſt, ſire, if not wholly exculpate us in your royal mind, yet plead powerfully in our favour, for the warmth with which we lament thoſe meaſures, whoſe deſtructive principles have driven our American brethren to acts of deſperation.

Convinced of the earneſt diſpoſition of the coloniſts to remain firm in all dutious obedience to the conſtitutional authority of this kingdom, permit us, moſt gracious ſovereign, to beſeech you, that thoſe operations of force, which at preſent diſtract them with the moſt dreadful apprehenſions, may be ſuſpended; and that, uncontrouled by a reſtraint incompatible with a free government, they may poſſeſs an opportunity of tendering ſuch terms of accommodation as we doubt not will approve them worthy of a diſtinguiſhed rank amongſt the firmeſt friends of this country.

His MAJESTY'S ANSWER.

I AM always ready to liſten to the dutiful petitions of my ſubjects, and ever happy to comply with their reaſonable requeſts; but, while the conſtitutional authority of this kingdom is reſiſted by part of my American ſubjects, I owe it to the reſt of my people, of whoſe zeal and fidelity I have had ſuch conſtant proofs, to continue and enforce thoſe meaſures by which alone their rights and intereſts can be aſſerted and maintained.

Lord North, Hydra like, wiſhes greatly for another head. He has entered into ſuch a maze of villainy, that his accurſed pericranium at laſt fails him; and though he is continually imploring his good friend Beelzebub for a freſh ſupply, the infernal ruler of the lower regions being ſo exceedingly buſy with Bute and Mansfield, cannot aſſiſt him. It ſeems they are to have a grand meeting ſhortly, and it is a thouſand to one if the Devil is not elected preſident.

WATERTOWN, September 4.

TWO of the enemy's floating batteries, attempting to annoy our people at work upon Plowed Hill, were ſilenced in Myſtic river, and one of them partly ſunk, by ſome of our cannon placed at Temple's farm.

There has been a heavy cannonade, more or leſs, every day the week paſt, notwithſtanding which we have had only 4 men killed, and 2 wounded.

The following acts paſſed the general aſſembly of this colony in their late ſeſſion, viz.

An act to confirm and eſtabliſh the reſolves of the ſeveral provincial congreſſes of this colony.

An act for making and emitting of bills of public credit.

An act declaratory of the right of certain towns and diſtricts in the colony of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, in New England, to elect and depute a repreſentative, or repreſentatives, to ſerve for, or repreſent them in, any great and general court or aſſembly, at any time to be held and kept for the ſervice of ſaid colony.

An act for the removing from their reſpective offices and places all the officers, both civil and military, belonging to this colony, holding, or claiming to hold, their reſpective offices or places by or under any nomination, appointment, or commiſſion, made or granted by any governor or lieutenant governor of the province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, in New England, either with or without the audience and conſent of the council, or aſſiſtance of the ſaid province, or by the major part of the council or aſſiſtants of ſaid province, in the abſence of the governor and lieutenant governor, before the perfect meeting of this general court.

An act preſcribing the form of an oath to be taken by all commiſſion officers, both civil and military, who have been commiſſionated for this colony ſince the 19th day of July laſt, or may be hereafter commiſſionated, until the farther order of the great and general court.

Early laſt Wedneſday morning the Roſe man of war, with 5 tenders, was obſerved chaſing ſeveral ſmall veſſels into the harbour of Stonington, ſuppoſed to be from Block Iſland. One of the inhabitants being down on the ſhore with a trumpet, attempting to pilot the veſſels into the harbour, was ordered by one of the tenders to deſiſt, or he would fire on the town; who returned, for anſwer, he might do as he pleaſed. Immediately the tender ran along-ſide of the wharves, and fired a whole broadſide on the town and people, which was returned by a volley of ſmall arms; and, after exchanging ſeveral vollies, the tender bore away, and joined the man of war and two tenders, and before 10 o'clock the Roſe ſhip of war, and the three tenders, were cloſe within 60 or 80 rods of the wharves, and began a very heavy fire on the town and inhabitants, until the middle of the day, when they ceaſed for two hours. In the interval, application was made to know the reaſon of theſe hoſtilities; anſwer was returned, that they began the firſt fire on him (than which nothing can be more falſe) and after about two hours, the fire began again, and continued till night. Thurſday morning they took ſundry veſſels out of the harbour, one from Surrinam, belonging to Patuzent, with molaſſes, and appeared as if going into New London. It is ſuppoſed there hath been no ſtock yet taken from Block Iſland. It is ſurprizing, that during this whole action there was only one man wounded; it is feared, mortally. Our people killed two men, and wounded ſeveral others, belonging to the man of war and tenders. There are 250 men now arrived, and are on Block Iſland, for the purpoſe of guarding the ſtock.

NEWPORT, September 4.

A SLOOP was lately carried into Boſton, with live ſtock from Connecticut, which was taken by a cruiſer, and veſſel and cargo condemned as forfeited. The captain left Boſton laſt Tueſday, and informs, that ten regulars were carried into Boſton dead the Sunday before, who had been killed by the riflemen belonging to the American army, on Saturday night the 26th of laſt month; that it was very ſickly among the inhabitants, and the miniſterial troops; and that there were but about 2000 regulars in Boſton fit for duty, and the ſame number at Bunker's Hill.

NEW YORK, September 11.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in London to his friend in this city, dated July 10.

THE preſent ſtruggle between this country and North America I have heard old people, 50 years ago, predict. It is in the nature of things that the greater will not longer obey the leſſer than when an opportunity preſents to exert itſelf, which period ſeems now to be come. I have always been of opinion that the meaſures purſued here ſince 1763 were miſtaken, and unjuſt; this country ſhould have been content to take the wealth of America by trade, and not by revenue acts, impoſed on a people unrepreſented. The aſſemblies of the colonies only have a right to give and grant when they think proper to the crown, and not an aſſembly of people here. This reaſoning, I think, is in the law of nature, this conſtitution; and ſo ſays Mr. Locke. But the laſt reaſoning of kings has now taken place, and the Americans have appealed to Heaven; that is, their ſword. I hope you will do your duty to your country, and always remember your allegiance and conſtitutional duty to your king; no other can or ought to be required. The men that I think are the evil counsellors in the present mistaken measures are, Lords Bute, Mansfield, Rochford, Sandwich, North, and many of inferior rank. The greatest part of the nation wish well to America, and detest the present politics; so that it is a war of administration only. As to parliament, that house is very civil and polite to the minister. A very few members there sometimes oppose him, only because they are out of place, or have no pension; but when a question is put, he carries it as he pleases, and often 15 or 20 to one. However, the ministry, I think, are sick of the war in America; yet I see not the least trace of their relaxing, except that I hear of no preparation to send more troops. But probably they will cover the coast with ships of war, and suffer no trade; and truly I think that would be a blessing to America, instead of a curse. The eyes of government are fixed on the congress and their resolutions, and perhaps on their proposals; for it is said that administration cannot yield, as being contrary to the dignity of the crown. I answer, then change the ministers, another set could with a good grace withdraw the present measures. But, in short, I think the rupture will be much greater before the wound is healed. Some more blood must be drawn, and then they, when cooled, will hear, and perhaps agree for some time; but whenever settled, I imagine America will carry some points towards the establishment of their liberties."

PHILADELPHIA, September 13.

LAST week arrived here the sloop Joseph, captain Redley, from Saint Eustatia, having lost her mast in the gale of the second instant, and informs, that the day after the gale he saw a brig with a white stern, and plain quarter pieces, which had been overset in the gale, and was then swimming with only her stern out of the water.

Yesterday arrived captain Falconer, from London, which he left in company with captain Osborn for this port. By him we have papers to the 13th of July, which are filled with the regular advices from America to the latter end of May and first of June, as also a great number of lies, with regard to affairs on this continent. They have an account of the appointment of general Washington, of taking the army at Cambridge into the continental pay, &c. By the papers we cannot find that any more troops are coming out to this country, they having only 7000 in Ireland, and 9000 in England, for their own defence, and are apprehensive of a visit from the Spaniards; but we find several frigates already sailed, and more sailing, the ministry having determined to beat our towns down, to starve us in a plentiful country, or force us to build a fleet, to protect our trade, whenever we please to carry it on.

Captain Davidson, from Cadiz, informs, that a French captain, who arrived there, reported, that the Spanish fleet had landed 10,000 men within 20 leagues of the town of Algiers, and that they were immediately attacked by a large body of horse, and entirely cut off. The French captain was imprisoned by the governor of Cadiz, for reporting the above, till he should hear the truth of it.

Saturday last arrived at Newcastle the ship Peace and Plenty, captain M'Kenzie, from Newry and Belfast, with 150 passengers in good health.

By captain M'Kenzie we are informed, that the news of the battle at Bunker's Hill was arrived in Ireland.

Saturday last being the day after which our exports to England, Ireland, and the West Indies, are to cease, agreeable to the resolution of the honourable continental congress, all the vessels which were intended for sea (to the amount of 52) sailed from this place, and has left us with hardly a vessel in port. Several of the above vessels arrived, or were taken up and loaded within the last 48 hours.

Extract of a letter from the American camp, dated August 31.

"Since the affair at Plowed Hill, the ministerial troops remained quiet all Sunday night; but on Monday morning we were alarmed by a signal from Chelsea, and presently perceived that they were drawn up, and in motion, on the side of Bunker's Hill, facing that way. It was immediately conjectured that they intended to attack us at high water, and in a short time 5 or 6000 of our men were marched to the entrenchment on Plowed Hill, and on Charlestown road. We waited there till near three o'clock in the afternoon, whilst the most awful silence was observed by both sides, until some of our men, straggling along the walls, fired upon the regular centries, which brought on several shot from the floating batteries, with the loss of one of the Bay soldiers. Since that time they have thrown between 20 and 30 bombs, and a vast number of cannon ball, but without doing any injury to our people. Unless very large reinforcements soon arrive, there will not be another engagement this year, as we have so vastly the superiority in point of numbers. At present, they lie tolerable still, except disturbing us at night with their bombs."

Extract of a letter, dated Cambridge, September 4.

"The enemy are endeavouring to annoy our new post with shot and bombs; their shot have killed 4, and wounded 3, on this side. At Roxbury they killed three on Friday night; a small loss. We seldom return the fire. On Saturday we gave them a few 24 pounders, which we believe killed several of their men, as the first shot entered their guard-house. Deserters are coming over to us every day. Simpson, of Pennsylvania, who was wounded at Plowed Hill, is since dead."

Extract of a letter from Prospect Hill, dated August 31.

"Last Saturday evening a party of 1000 men, attended by a picquet guard of 2000 provincials and 400 riflemen, were ordered to throw up an intrenchment on Plowed Hill, which lies on Charlestown Neck, about half a mile from Bunker's Hill. They had their works considerably advanced before dawn, at which time they expected to be attacked; but the regulars observed a profound silence till about 10 o'clock, when they began a very heavy cannonade on our men on the hill, which continued pretty constantly the whole day. An adjutant and a private soldier of the Massachusetts men had their heads shot off, and one volunteer in the rifle battalion, of the name of Simpson, received a wound in his leg, of which he is since dead."

Extract of a letter from London, dated July 12.

"The parliament is not sitting, and of course nothing transpires; things seem to bear a more favourable aspect. That fiery spirit of administration, with which we were at first threatened, is in a great measure appeased; the unanimity, and unexpected measures entered into by the colonies, has opened their eyes, and I am inclined to hope will convince them of their error. The undauntedness of your conduct, throughout the whole of this disagreeable contest, is such as does you honour, and deserves to be handed down to the latest posterity. You have already shewn them what you Americans can do, and that you are determined to risk your lives and properties in defence of your liberties. I hope you will continue firm in your wise resolution of non-importation and exportation; this will occasion more noise, in particular amongst the manufacturers, as these people begin now to complain, and will continue so to do, as their miseries encrease. An express arrived the 10th instant from Gibraltar, which brings an account of a large body of troops marching to attack that place, likewise mentions the Spanish fleet being but 60 leagues off, and it was expected the garrison would be attacked by land and sea in a short time."

WILLIAMSBURG.

In COMMITTEE, at HANOVER town, the 21*st of September*, 1775.

RESOLVED, that it is the opinion of this committee, that the commissary, or contractor, appointed in each district, should provide for the battalion thereof, under the said appointment, the several articles necessary for their encampment and discipline, described by an ordinance of convention as follows, to wit. Tents of the same kind as directed for the regulars, kettles, canteens, drums, fifes, a stand of colours, with the following motto on one side:

VIRGINIA FOR CONSTITUTIONAL LIBERTY.

And on the other side the name of the district.

JOHN PENDLETON, junior, c. c. s.

THE committee of safety earnestly recommend it to the committees of the several counties to lose no time in collecting and forwarding the public arms, according to the order of convention; and also to elect their militia officers, where it is not already done, and forward their certificates to this committee, that commissions may be made out, and the militia embodied as soon as possible.

By order of the committee.

JOHN PENDLETON, junior, clerk.

It is expected that such members of the house of burgesses as are convenient will meet at the capitol in Williamsburg, on Thursday the 12th of October, in order to adjourn to some future day.

WANTED to the battalion of minute-men, in the lower end of the Northern Neck, an ADJUTANT who is well acquainted with the duty of that office, agreeable to the order or directions of his majesty in the year 1764. As this is the only officer in the minute service whose pay will be constant for nine months in the year, it is hoped such as are qualified will readily engage. Also wanted, a DRUMMER and FIFER, who can teach others the duty, to act as drum and fife-majors.------The CHAPLAIN's place to said battalion is not yet engaged.

HUNTINGTOUR, September 14, 1775.

THE lands I have for some time advertised for sale are not as yet sold. I will sell them at a very low price, and give a reasonable time of payment for part of the money. The reason why I have not sold them was, that I would give no credit.

ANTHONY WINSTON.

ANDERSON, junior.

POETS CORNER.

An ELEGY, to the memory of the AMERICAN VOLUNTEERS who fell in the engagement between the MASSACHUSETTS BAY MILITIA and the BRITISH TROOPS, Auguſt 19, 1775.

LET joy be dumb, let mirth's gay carol ceaſe,
See plaintive ſorrow comes bedew'd with tears,
With mournful ſteps retires the cherub PEACE,
And horrid war, with all his train, appears.
He comes, and crimſon ſlaughter marks his way,
Stern famine follows in his vengeful tread,
Before him pleaſure, hope, and love decay,
And meek ey'd mercy hangs the drooping head.
Fled like a dream are thoſe delightful hours,
When here with innocence and peace we rov'd,
Secure and happy in our native bow'rs,
Bleſt in the preſence of the youths we lov'd.
The blow is ſtruck, which, thro' each future age,
Shall call from pity's eye the frequent tear,
Which gives the brother to the brother's rage,
And dyes with Britiſh blood the Britiſh ſpear.
Where'er the barb'rous ſtory ſhall be told,
The Britiſh cheek ſhall glow with conſcious ſhame;
This deed, in bloody characters enroll'd,
Shall ſtain the luſtre of their former name.
But you, ye brave defenders of our cauſe,
The firſt in this dire conteſt call'd to bleed,
Your names hereafter, crown'd with juſt applauſe,
Each manly breaſt, with joy-mixt woe, ſhall read.
Your memories, dear to ev'ry free-born mind,
Shall need no monument your fame to raiſe,
Forever in our grateful hearts enſhrin'd,
And bleſt by your united country's praiſe.
But, O! permit the muſe, with grief ſincere,
The widow's heart-felt anguiſh to bemoan,
To join the ſiſter's and the orphan's tear,
Whom this ſad day from all they lov'd has torn.
Bleſt be this humble ſtrain, if it imparts
The dawn of peace to but one penſive breaſt,
If it can huſh one ſigh that rends your hearts,
Or lull your ſorrows to a ſhort liv'd reſt.
But vain the hope, too well this boſom knows;
How faint is glory's voice to nature's calls!
How weak the balm the laurel wreath beſtows,
To heal our breaſts, when love or friendſhip falls!
Yet think; they in their country's cauſe expir'd,
While guardian angels watch'd their parting ſighs,
Their dying breaſts with conſtancy inſpir'd,
And bade them welcome to their native ſkies.
Our future fate is wrapp'd in darkeſt gloom,
And threat'ning clouds, from which their ſouls are freed,
E'er the big tempeſt burſt, they preſs the tomb,
Not doom'd to ſee their much lov'd country bleed.
O! let ſuch thoughts as theſe aſſuage your grief,
And ſtop the tear of ſorrow as it flows,
Till TIME's all pow'rful hand ſhall yield relief,
And ſhed a kind oblivion o'er your woes.
But, Oh! thou BEING, infinitely juſt,
Whoſe boundleſs eye with mercy looks on all,
On thee alone thy humbled people truſt,
On thee alone for their deliv'rance call.
Long did thy hand unnumber'd bleſſings ſhow'r,
And crown our land with LIBERTY and PEACE;
Extend, O LORD! again thy ſaving pow'r,
And bid the horrors of invaſion ceaſe.
But if thy awful wiſdom has decreed
That we ſeverer evils yet ſhall know,
By thy almighty juſtice doom'd to bleed,
And deeper drink the bitter draughts of woe,
O! grant us, Heav'n, that conſtancy of mind
Which over adverſe fortune riſes ſtill,
Unſhaken faith, calm fortitude reſign'd,
And full ſubmiſſion to thy holy will.
To thee, ETERNAL PARENT, we reſign
Our bleeding cauſe, and on thy wiſdom reſt;
With grateful hearts we bleſs thy pow'r divine,
And own, reſign'd, WHAT IS, IS BEST.

RUN away from the ſubſcriber, in Williamſburg, the 16th inſtant (July) two ſervant men, viz. JOHN STANTON, an Engliſhman, by trade a wheelwright, pitted with the ſmallpox, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, with ſhort dark hair; had on, when he went away, a brown cloth coat and jacket, ſtriped and check trowſers, and is very talkative. A MAN, with a ſmall family, would gladly be employed in any gentleman's ſervice, either in Virginia or Carolina, as a head overſeer or ſteward, and will come well recommended. He underſtands ſurveying, and may be employed in that buſineſs. Apply to the printer, or the honourable John Taylor, eſquire, in Richmond. He will write to any gentleman as ſoon as a letter comes to hand.

8 NATHANIEL POPE.

MANCHESTER, July 28, 1775.

A STOCKING WEAVER WILL MEET WITH ENCOURAGEMENT BY APPLYING TO ALEXANDER AND PETERFIELD TRENT.

RUN away from the ſubſcriber, in Charles City, the 20th of July, a negro fellow, named BOB, about 22 years of age, with a remarkable ſcar on his upper lip; he has an innocent look, is ſlow of ſpeech, and very artful. A few months ago he attempted to paſs to South Carolina by getting a forged paſs. I will give TWENTY SHILLINGS reward to any perſon that will ſecure him in any gaol, ſo that I get him, beſides what the law allows. He is ſuppoſed to be with a negro woman belonging to the eſtate of James Bacburſt, deceaſed, named Hannah, who is now run away alſo.

ARCHELAUS MITCHELL.

RUN away from the ſubſcriber, in Cheſterfield county, a ſervant man, named WILLIAM ROLLINGS. He is of the middle ſtature, much marked with the ſmallpox, and is of a red complexion; had on when he went away a blanket great coat. Any perſon that will deliver him to me, or ſecure him in any of the gaols of this colony, ſo that I may get him, ſhall receive FORTY SHILLINGS reward. FRANCIS SMITH.

 He came down as a waggoner with the Cheſterfield volunteers, and was placed near the palace; and I ſuſpect he is on board the man of war.

RUN away from the ſubſcriber, in Accomack, the 26th of June laſt, a negro fellow, named DANIEL, of a yellow complexion, about 20 years of age, with a down, ſly look, and ſtoops in the ſhoulders; his back is much ſcarred with old whippings. It is expected he will change his name, and paſs for a free man. He had on, when he went away, a Virginia linen tow ſhirt, Virginia cloth ſhort breeches, and an old bearſkin jacket. When he looks at a perſon his face appears ſomewhat awry. I will give TEN DOLLARS to any perſon that ſhall ſecure the ſaid runaway, and give me intelligence thereof, and if brought to me all reaſonable charges paid, by 3 CLEMENT PARKER.

THE ſubſcriber being very deſirous of getting out of debt, without any dependence on his ungrateful debtors, propoſes to ſell THE PLEASANT AND HEALTHY SEAT OF near Appamattox river, in the lower end of Buckingham, with 1500 or 2000 acres of good land, which produces fine tobacco, hemp, wheat, &c. The houſes are new, and the beſt I have ſeen in the county. A larger and better garden, I believe is not in the colony, and on the land are ſeveral hundred fruit trees, of the beſt kinds; many of which were brought by water, to Richmond town, above 80 miles. On this tract is a large proportion of exceeding fine meadow land, with a fine fiſh-pond within 300 yards of the dwellinghouſe, ſtored with various kinds of fine fiſh, ſufficient for the uſe of a family the year round. In this neighbourhood is plenty of excellent veniſon; the air is ſo pure that I never knew an inſtance of any perſon having the ague and fever at Huntington. I have travelled through the moſt parts of Virginia, and have not ſeen any part that I would ſo ſoon live at as in this neighbourhood. If I ſell this place, I ſhall live on part of the tract of land that has been advertiſed for ſome time paſt. I make no doubt but Appamattox river will be ſoon cleared, and then wheat will be carried as far as colonel Baniſter's mill, by Peterſburg, for 4d. or 5d. per buſhel. At this place I made 100 gallons of wine in 1772, and laſt year, if it had not been for the froſt, I could have made 5 or 600 gallons, which quantity I expect to make this year. Huntington would be a pleaſant and ſafe place for a gentleman to retreat to, in the horrors of a civil war, or in the ſickly months, which are in many parts of the lowlands.

"What is honour, grandeur, wealth?
"All fleeting; nothing's without health."

I hope any gentleman inclinable to purchaſe will viſit the premiſes this ſummer. I will alſo ſell the tract of rich land, which I advertiſed in Albemarle for ſome time, very cheap; that is, for half its value. ANTHONY WINSTON.

TO BE SOLD, IN AMHERST COUNTY,

ABOUT 4000 acres of exceeding good tobacco LAND, being part of a larger tract formerly advertiſed, together with a very valuable GRIST MILL, upon Buffalo river. This land is equal to any that has yet been ſold of the tract. The time of payment will be made agreeable to purchaſers. Mr. Gabriel Penn, who lives near the land, is authorized to bargain for it, and will ſhew it to any perſons inclinable to purchaſe.

tf CARTER BRAXTON.

For SALE, in CHESTERFIELD county,

A TRACT of LAND, lying on Appomattox river, about 3 miles below Peterſburg, containing 307 acres, 50 of which are very valuable marſh and meadow land, the reſidue good high land, well calculated for a farm. There is on this land a good dwellinghouſe, outhouſes, barns, and all other neceſſary buildings, very fine orchards, and other valuable improvements. The ſituation is exceedingly beautiful and healthy. Alſo a tract of land, lying on the ſame river, in the lower part of Amelia county, containing 540 acres, 200 of which are low grounds; the whole tract equal in goodneſs to any land in the colony, the high land lies level, and produces fine crops of tobacco, wheat, and corn; it is well known by the name of Gooſe Iſland; the buildings and other improvements are valuable, and the plantation in fine order; it will work 12 or 15 hands to advantage. Both or either of theſe tracts of land will be ſold on any time of credit not exceeding 7 years, the purchaſer giving bond with approved ſecurity, and paying intereſt from the date of the bond. tf ROBERT KENNON.

FOR SALE,

NINE hundred and forty acres of valuable land, lying on both ſides of Contrary River, in Louiſa, with three plantations thereon, two of which has ſufficient houſes for overſeers and negroes; the other is improved with all neceſſary buildings, and orchards of all kinds, fit for the reception of a gentleman, the houſes being finiſhed in the beſt manner This tract is well timbered and watered, lies within 32 miles of Frederickſburg, and 43 of Page's warehouſe; there are at leaſt 400 acres of low grounds, of the beſt ſoil, 300 of which are now to cut. The three plantations are under good fences, and in good order to work 12 or 15 hands. Robert Fleming, John Maſſey, and John Lain, are now in poſſeſſion of the plantations, who will ſhew the land to any perſon inclinable to purchaſe, and Major Thomas Johnſon will agree with them for the price. The above tract is eſteemed the moſt valuable in Louiſa for growing corn, wheat, or tobacco, and ſituated in the beſt range for ſtock of any below the great mountains. (tf 1*)

FOR SALE, AND VERY CHEAP,

A PLANTATION in good order for cropping, none of the land having been cleared above ſix years, with all neceſſary houſes, quite new, together with 1100 acres of exceeding rich land, the ſoil of which is ſo good that it will bring large tobacco for five or ſix years without dung. I have made on this plantation above three thouſand pounds of tobacco per ſhare. The place is very healthy, and has a fine range for ſtock. This land lies in the lower end of Buckingham county, near to Appomattox river, on each ſide of Great Ducker's and Mayo creeks. Tobacco has been carried above this land near to Peterſburg by water, and laſt month, in the dry weather, two canoe loads of wheat were carried near to Peterſburg, and the canoes brought back; they were loaded but a little below this land. I make no doubt but Appomattox river will be ſoon cleared, and then the expence of ſending wheat, tobacco, &c. will be trifling. Any perſon inclinable to purchaſe will ſee, by the produce of the land, that it is exceeding rich. I really do not know any better high land in the colony. This tract of land is well timbered, and has excellent water on it. I do not know a better place for a merchant mill than is on Ducker's creek. People are going much on raiſing wheat in theſe parts, and a good mill would be very advantageous to the owner. Alſo another tract of land of 826 acres, in Albemarle county, I believe about ten miles from the courthouſe, joining Mr. James Harris and the quarters of Mr. John Winſton. On this land is a ſmall plantation, a good apple orchard, &c. The land is good, and my price ſo low, that I am convinced any perſon who viewed either of the above tracts of land would not heſitate to give the price I ſhall aſk. Neither of theſe tracts are under any incumbrance whatſoever. A reaſonable time of payment will be allowed.

tf ANTHONY WINSTON.
